A Case of Scandal and Brutality.

PHILADELPHIA Aug 17—A well known wealthy married man named John L Kates, was before the court to-day charged with a fiendish assault on Miss Pemberton. It seems Kates had seduced her when she was about fifteen years old, and she claims he has held her in semi-slavery ever since. Recently she attended a picnic without his permission and when she returned he charged her with infidelity, knocked her down beat her in a brutal manner then tore her clothes off and after pouring burning fluid over her set fire to her and tried to burn her alive. The interference of people in the house prevented his design. On Friday evening last he whipped her in a brutal manner and swore he would disfigure her so that she would never be able to go out. Great efforts are made by interested parties to keep the details of the affair private. Kates was held in $2 200 bail

Nearly all the clothes were on it, and notes and letters were discovered which prove unmistakably his identity.

Excitement at Charleston—The Defaulting Treasurer Released on Trifling Bail.

CHARLESTON S. C Aug 17—An exciting time last evening in Columbia was caused by proceedings under the habeas corpus for the release of ex Treasurer Parker. The application was heard at 8 P. M before Judge Mackey, Parker's counsel claiming his discharge under the provision of the constitution prohibiting imprisonment for debt. The sheriff's return failed to allege that the case was one of fraud a charge which is especially excepted by the constitutional prohibition of imprisonment for debt and after argument the judge released the prisoner. The court-room was filled with an excited crowd, and Parker was immediately rearrested on a criminal warrant for grand larceny but his counsel waived examination and urging that the amount involved in the alleged robbery had nothing to do with the amount of bail, succeeded in getting him released on $7 000. The News and Courier denounces the release as a gross judicial outrage, and a job put up by certain state officials

Railway Matters

ST PAUL Aug 17—Information is received that at a recent conference in New York between the chief officers of the St Paul and Pacific railroad and a committee of Dutch bondholders an agreement was arrived at by virtue of which a pending litigation is withdrawn for a year and if the agreement is ratified by the principals in Holland two uncompleted parts of the line will be completed in time to save the land grant giving direct connection from St Paul with the N. P. R. R. at Brainerd and with the Canadian road now building from Fort Garry to Pembina.

Kuklux in Illinois.

ST LOUIS, Aug 17—A special from Benton Franklin county Ill says for some time past a body of men disguised in kuklux style have been traveling about whipping citizens and forcing them to do as dictated. Up to this time in Williamson and Franklin counties the citizens have submitted but yesterday J B Maddox county commissioner received information that some of these men would visit his home and whip him for not obeying orders from them. He informed the sheriff who called 20 men and secreted them at the house well armed. About 2 o'clock this morning the kuklux about 14 in number appeared on horses dressed in white robes high white hats masked and armed with shotguns and pistols. The sheriff ordered them to surrender. The leader of the band fired missing the sheriff who with his posse made an attack when the band shot and wheeled and attempted to escape. The posse then fired and one man was mortally wounded and five others injured all succeeded in escaping but the one who was fatally shot. The names of the others was revealed by the wounded man who was captured and the sheriff and posse are after them to day. Great excitement prevails and the citizens are determined to rid the country of these midnight marauders. A meeting was held to day and resolutions adopted. Active measures are being taken to bring them to justice. These desperadoes are said to be some 100 strong in the county. The governor has sent 100 stand of arms and a military company is being formed and bloody results may be expected

Preparations for Retirement of Fractional Currency

CHICAGO Aug 17—A Washington special says preparations for the retirement of the fractional currency outstanding and the substitution of silver therefor is being pushed forward by the treasury department. To the accomplishment of this end over ten millions of five per cent bonds are already sold in the purchase of silver bullion and it will require ten millions more before sufficient silver is accumulated to begin resumption thus adding twenty millions to the interest bearing debt to carry out the provisions of the so called specie resumption. The bill passed last January will it is estimated at the department necessitate a total increase of the bonded debt of about $450 000 000. Should this estimate prove correct there will be an additional burden of near $18 000 000 imposed on the taxpayers of the country to meet the interest on these bonds. Secretary Bristow claims the right under the provisions of the bill to issue any amount of five per cent bonds necessary to carry it into effect. The funding act of 1870 fixed the amount of five per cent bonds to be issued at $500 000 000. $463 000 000 have been disposed of and the syndicate has the option of the remainder until November next

The chief engineer of the Walla Walla fire department has "struck," and will resign unless he gets more pay

A Swede whose name is not given was knocked down and robbed at Walla Walla last week. He had just arrived from Umatilla

The Walla Walla Spirit says: Messrs Campbell Jones and others have threshed their fall wheat and as far as threshed the average is about 42 bushels per acre. Mr C Maier threshed a field of 21 acres from which he realized 53 bushels and some pounds as an average per acre

The fruit crops in Walla Walla valley as a general thing, will be light this season. Peaches are a total failure. Pear crop not half a one and apple crop not only light, but of a very inferior quality. Plums are scarce and growers are talking of eight cents per pound in any quantity. Last year the price of the last mentioned fruit was from one to two cents per pound. Grapes will be tolerably plentiful in their season

On Tuesday of last week John Dovell while working in a planing mill in Walla Walla was painfully injured. At the time he was engaged with the planer in dressing a lot of lumber, when one of the knives of the planer became loose and striking the board in an unusual manner drove it back. In flying back the board struck Mr Dovell's right leg about three inches above the knee breaking the bone and bruising the flesh. Notwithstanding the force of the blow and the severity of his injuries Mr Dovell retained his consciousness, and while lying on the floor unable to move gave directions in regard to stopping the machinery

The Walla Walla Union says: On Saturday July 31st one man by the name of Thos Jackson was killed and another named R A Noyes was so badly burned by a blast that he will probably be entirely blind for life. It seems that the two men were working a quartz ledge for the Oppenheimers about ten miles below Kettle falls and that they had put in a blast which failed to explode. After waiting until they supposed all danger was past they went down and attempted to do something with it when it unexpectedly exploded. Jackson was terribly mangled and lived only half an hour. Noyes who was entirely blinded succeeded in getting out of the shaft and calling a squaw to his assistance and then they brought Jackson to the surface where he died, as we have said in half an hour after the accident. Jackson it seems had on a former occasion in the mines in California or Nevada lost an eye in a similar manner

CURTIS AND BLAIR

A REMINISCENCE OF THE CHICAGO WIGWAM

[From Harper's Weekly

Whoever knew General Frank Blair must have heard of his death with sincere regret. With great and obvious defects of character for which he dearly paid he had many of those qualities which awaken and retain admiration and regard. He had indeed many of the traits of a hero—undaunted courage, gallantry, ardor and independence, and his service in rescuing Missouri from the coils of slavery and secession was a signal personal triumph which his subsequent aberrations and extravagances as a Democrat should not obscure. A service of another kind but not less useful and admirable in its way was the Brodhead letter, for while it was characteristically bold and defiant it was sincere and served to show in his immediate nomination by the Democratic party exactly the spirit and hope of that organization. There is still another service of another kind which Mr Blair rendered the Republican party and which is not generally known. The Chicago convention of 1860, which nominated Abraham Lincoln was composed like all such bodies of the Republicans of principle and courage and those of a timid and perilous expediency. It was evident in the situation of the country that, opposed to a haughty and confident party in full possession of the government and threatening its ruin if they were defeated the true policy for the Republicans was a bold declaration of their principles and an appeal to the national conscience and courage. The time for trimming and hesitation had passed. When the committee on resolutions reported the platform, Mr Giddings of Ohio, moved an amendment reasserting the self evident truths of the Declaration of Independence. Mr Cartter of Ohio strenuously objected that the convention might as well reassert the Ten Commandments. Another gentleman joined in opposition and no one sustaining the amendment probably fearing that any discussion of the platform or change in it might lead to unexpected and undesirable results Mr Ashmun the president eagerly put the question and with evident satisfaction declared the amendment lost. Mr Giddings and his friends thereupon rose to withdraw from the convention. As he passed the seats of the New York delegation, one of its members seeing in their departure the retirement of the strong, aggressive anti slavery element, which was indispensable in the impending contest as really the soul of the Republican party and feeling that nothing could more fatally discourage that party and all brave Sons of Liberty in the Union than the knowledge that the convention had been afraid in that national exigency to repeat the words of the Declaration as its political creed and had actually rejected them when offered stopped Mr Giddings and begged him to remain, as he would offer substantially the same amendment

Sending word to the chair that he wished to be recognized as soon as possible the member rose and Mr Ashmun, not suspecting that anything would proceed from the New York delegation that could disturb the convention immediately gave the New Yorker the floor and he renewed Mr Giddings amendment merely changing its form so as to include the opening words of the Declaration. Instantly there was an uproar and the point of order was vociferously made that the convention had just virtually passed upon the same amendment. Mr Ashmun eagerly as before and with an air of irritation that the trouble should have been renewed decided the point to be well taken and passed peremptorily to the next business. During the reading of the platform and the debate upon the amendment of Mr Giddings the member from New York had observed at the end of the seat opposite his own upon the aisle and but a few feet from him a sturdy sandy haired man who sat carelessly swinging one leg and foot over the arm of the seat and squirting tobacco juice upon the floor, apparently indifferent to everything that took place. But as Mr Ashmun peremptorily ruled the sandy haired man by a sudden spring raised himself erect upon his feet standing on the seat, and with a voice that commanded the chair so that he instinctively turned and could not help recognizing, the speaker exclaimed: "Mr President!" Mr Ashmun responded "The gentleman from Missouri." "I rise to a point of order." "The gentleman will state it." "My point is that the amendment of the gentleman from Ohio was to one clause of the resolutions and that of the gentleman from New York to another and that the question therefore has not been decided by the convention." The point was indisputable. Mr Ashmun saw it, and said coldly: "The gentleman's point is well taken and the gentleman from New York has the floor." The amendment was renewed a few words were said in support of it and the convention now understanding the situation reversed its previous vote and with enthusiastic unanimity adopted the amendment while Mr Giddings and his friends resumed their seats in the convention. The sturdy sandy haired delegate was Frank Blair and it was he who thus saved to the Republican platform of 1860 the consecrating phrases of the Declaration and to hearty cooperation with the Republican party the original anti slavery sentiment

SECURITY TO BATHERS.

A SIMPLE AND EFFICIENT LIFE PRESERVING APPARATUS

[From N. Y. Tribune Aug ...]

The crowd at Rockaway Beach yesterday was one of the largest of the season. The five steamboats that left this city and Brooklyn were laden to their utmost capacity and the railroad trains were thronged as they usually are on Sunday. The feature of the day which attracted great attention was the trial of a new life saving apparatus the invention of Capt M Ormsbee of No 32 Willow st Brooklyn. Heretofore efforts have been made along the beach by the hotel proprietors to devise some means of sending speedy aid to drowning bathers. Several fatal accidents have occurred and no plan has been found adequate to give assistance quickly enough. Life-boats have been stationed at various points but the difficulty of getting them over the breakers has rendered them of little practical value. At Failing's hotel a Boynton life preserving apparatus has been kept for some time and has often been used in practice but its great weight has given cause for the same objection as that in the case of the life boats. The invention of Capt Ormsbee is claimed to be free from these objections. A collar with a total diameter of about two feet the diameter of its hollow portion being about six inches is constructed of rubber and the opening is sufficiently large to admit of slipping it over the head. Attached to the interior wall of the hollow portion on the side of the central opening is a circular diaphragm making the opening considerably smaller than a man's head. But being elastic the collar easily slips over the head and the diaphragm then fits closely to the neck. The hollow portion of the collar is inflated with air, and remains so whether in use or not. The collar is put in position on the neck in an instant

Besides this there are two rubber sleeves made like the collar with two walls and capable of inflation. Slipping them on the wearer brings the tube to his mouth and very soon inflates them. At a signal of distress it comes from some one bathing in the breakers or beyond the buoys any one on the beach can put on the collar and sleeves in less than a minute and hasten to give relief. The drowning person once reached the rescuer removes the collar from his own neck and puts it on the sinking man retaining the sleeves for his own support. Experiments were tried yesterday at Failing's hotel before a large assemblage. Capt Ormsbee stationed himself on the shore and a young man far out among the breakers signaled him to come. Hastening through the water Capt Ormsbee was at the young man's side in less than a minute and had the collar over his head. The experiment was repeated and several used the collar as an aid in swimming. Ladies who could not swim found it a complete support. Two and three men took hold of the collar and raised their feet from the sea bottom and found themselves supported. The sleeves may be used for pleasure bathing. Allow the arms to rest upon the body a person floats with great ease and when a breeze is blowing an umbrella may be used as a sail

OREGON CONFERENCE

Fifth Day's Session.

SALEM August 16 1875

The conference met pursuant to adjournment Bishop Peck in the chair. J W Miller conducted the religious services

THE FLOODS IN THE WEST

THE DAMAGE IN OHIO MOSTLY ON HAY WHEAT, AND OATS—NOT MUCH CORN DESTROYED

COLUMBUS Ohio Aug 3—The great rains have not entirely ceased though from such facts as are attainable here, the height of the floods has been reached and the waters will probably now slowly settle. Their falling, however does not stay the damage to farmers' products and only immediate and continuous sunshine would repair the losses. The continuous rainy weather, and not the flooding which is the result of the unprecedented fall of water in the last three days, has been the cause of destruction the extent of which thus far is considered to have been limited to hay wheat oats and other cereals, not including corn

The losses extend over the country drained by the tributaries of the Ohio falling heaviest perhaps in Ohio and the valley of the Wabash in Illinois. In the northern half of Ohio the weather has been very wet for two or three weeks and some damage has been sustained by wheat, which has sprouted or grown in many instances where farmers were not fortunate enough to be through harvesting early. A very good yield of hay was secured before it was injured much by rain. From the middle east, and west line of the state south to the Ohio river there has scarcely been a good harvest day in two months and recently none at all. All the grain that has yet matured has been almost wholly destroyed. Some wheat has been covered with water and some sheaves swept away by the floods but this has already become worthless. Oats on the upland will if good weather should very soon return be saved to a considerable extent though the cost of harvesting would be much increased

Thus far but little corn has been absolutely destroyed, though much has been more or less injured. Corn is the great staple of most of the inundated counties and millions of acres now stand under water. On the Miami river bottom the water is sometimes up to the tassels of immense fields of corn. The rains have well nigh produced a great calamity but if reasonably dry weather should now be enjoyed the great staple would not be much hurt and the people would be left well able to sustain their other losses except in individual cases. If the rainy weather continues but a little while longer however the corn too will be destroyed, and several millions of inhabitants of the most fertile part of the continent will be left without means of securing sufficient food for winter

Many reports have been put in circulation recently in regard to Mr Beecher's increase of salary. It has been stated that the members of the Plymouth Church congregation were backward in subscribing toward the additional salary and that it was designed to mortgage the Bethel for the purpose of raising the necessary funds. All these reports are denied by the members of the church. It is asserted by them that out of the whole amount voted to Mr Beecher only $20 000 yet remains to be collected. This will not be needed before next winter. There has been no backwardness or lack of zeal in the matter and no difficulty will be experienced it is believed

Dalby & Co, of Victoria, write to E M Waite, secretary of the State Agricultural Society that they will visit the coming state fair with stock, and thinks quite a large attendance may be expected from that section. No doubt the fair of 1875 will far eclipse all others in attendance and attractions

The Salem Statesman says: "The prisoner Whiteman incarcerated in the county jail, went from Saturday morning until Monday morning, 48 hours without any food. Whether he started in to starve himself or from pure stubbornness is not known. Whatever the cause he came to his fodder yesterday morning when Billy Barker took in his breakfast piping hot"

The Pendleton Tribune of last Saturday learns that Daniel H Bird a farmer residing on East Birch creek Umatilla county, cut his throat on the Monday previous in an outbuilding on his ranch and lived only a few moments after being discovered. For some months past he has been of unsound mind, at times, (or at least has been so considered by his neighbors) and there is but little doubt that he took his own life in a fit of insanity. He leaves a wife and children to mourn his untimely decease.

Old Wenap Snoot, the head chief of the Umatilla Indians, recently became convinced that having more than one wife was wrong, and so he has sent his oldest one adrift. But he did the fair thing by the old lady giving her four sacks of flour lots of sugar calico for dresses, and everything else that an Indian of female persuasion so much loves, and she left on a fine Cayuse horse, which was actually loaded down with presents the old chief had bestowed upon her prior to her departure. The final parting revealed a state of true inwardness and paroxysmal kissing truly painful to witness.

Every person burnt out at Weston intends rebuilding. Those who have not already commenced are making preparations to build right away on an improved scale. We learn the following particulars respecting the improvements there. Seven houses have been commenced on the burnt district two of them have been completed. The corner-stone of the Episcopal church has been laid, and the brick are being hauled to lay the rest of the foundation. The farmers are all busy, crops average well. The fall wheat is excellent. The late sown grain will not yield so well. Premature ripening has caused it to shrink some. The new road is being thoroughly discussed and is likely to be put through. It crosses a little below the first crossing of the Thomas & Ruckle road, and then takes up the canyon of Meacham creek, and intersects the old road near the Meacham hotel. The grade is said to be an easy one, and shortens the distance considerably over the old traveled road. The road from Weston to Umatilla is an excellent one. We know whereof we speak

PARTIES AND PLATFORMS.

The efforts now making by the managers of the old parties to induce those who have been acting independently, to surrender their consciences again into the keeping of the party organizations, suggest the propriety of an examination of the subject of party discipline. There is a large class of persons mostly, but not wholly, composed of members of the Democratic and Republican parties, who are incapable of forming any conception of the idea of individual independence in political action, and who think, therefore, that in order to be independent one must belong, soul and body, to an independent party and render to its behests the same unquestioning obedience which the Republican and Democratic rings were until lately in the habit of exacting from their members. An Independent party, claiming such allegiance, would be, not an independent party, but a fraud and a cheat. The slavish sentiment that denies to any man the untrammeled exercise of his own individual judgment in all political matters upon which he may be called upon to act, finds no place in the Independent organization. It belongs to those parties whose members also belong to them.

Parties are useful, when used as a means of carrying out in practical administration true principles and policies; and it is highly proper for every man to be so far identified with some party through which correct sentiment may be aggregated and concentrated, as not to waste his moral power in single-handed contests with organized opposition. In other words, organization is necessary to cope with organization. But whenever any party demands that its members shall forego their own judgments and follow its direction though they lead manifestly to results which are unfavorable to the public weal, it is the right, and not the right alone, but the duty of the members of the party to rebel. So it is, when parties are manipulated by selfish and deceitful men, to promote their private advantage. A party so managed deserves to be repudiated, and its members can not acquit themselves as good citizens except by bolting its nominations and hurling it from power, even though its platform be absolutely faultless. In such parties platforms are mere tricks of language with which to capture the unwary. Platforms are worse than ropes of sand to bind a party to its good behavior. They bind nobody. Those who perform when in power, what their platform promised in order to get them into power, would perform the same things if there had been no platform. Those who are not bound by the obligations of conscience, by convictions of duty, will break the pledges of their platforms. The farce of civil service reform is an instance in point. In 1872, the platform of the Republicans on this subject, and the professions by the President of his anxiety for the inauguration of a system of appointments to the civil service which would stop the debauching of the public morals of the country, by means of Federal patronage, were the most influential circumstance of the campaign in securing the support of the intelligent and non-partisan people of the nation for Grant. But the platform and the fine promises all went for nothing in the policy afterwards pursued by the President. They were violated and trampled under foot, and the President himself confederated with a ring of the most unprincipled political scoundrels that ever existed outside Tammany Hall, to make his own civil service rules a failure, and the reform a farce. It is a scandalous fact, but it is a fact nevertheless. The case of the civil service fraud is no isolated case, except in its magnitude. In all other respects, it is but an illustration of the common course of parties that have fallen into the hands of professional politicians.

THE TRICK.

The Evening Journal gives the following as the circumstances connected with the nomination of Mr. Geo. M. Whitney for Congress and his telegram to Mr. Jason Owens, of the Republican convention:

> A day or two prior to the meeting of the conventions at Salem, two Republican politicians, members of the Custom House ring in this city, slipped off to Eugene and interviewed the gentleman who is now the Independent nominee for congress. They represented to him that they had been in consultation with leading members of the Independent party, and that after a long discussion it was concluded by Republicans and Independents the better policy would be to have but one candidate in the field, and as a man fitted for a compromise candidate, the choice had fell upon Mr. Whitney. These unscrupulous schemers, aware of the action proposed by the Independents when in convention assembled, then asked, as parties authorized to receive an answer, if Mr. Whitney would accept the nominations of both parties, and take the stump in the approaching canvass. To this Mr. Whitney gave an affirmative answer, and so the matter rested for the time.
> On the day that the dispatch came from Salem to Mr. Whitney, asking whether he would accept the Independent nomination or not, the custom house ring men were on hand with him. They now stated that it was Mr. Whitney's duty to accept immediately, and, to save time, they wrote a dispatch of acceptance while the nominee was consulting with his friends who were eager to congratulate him on every hand. They showed this dispatch to Mr. Whitney, who objected to the wording as to "both conventions," and it was only sent without substantial alteration for the reason, the schemers stated, it was necessary to so word it in order to inform the Republican convention that he was willing to the compromise and would lend himself toward its consummation.
> The dispatch was the one that we have already published. It fell upon uninitiated Independents at Salem like a wet blanket, and set them wild, while the gentleman whose name was signed to it was at home, unconscious of the fact that he had been tricked by parties whom he had always before regarded as his friends. Our readers know the rest of the story.

The Journal says this story is from Mr. Whitney himself. This is substantially the same version we have had of the matter from Mr. Whitney, except that the subject of his being a candidate was not broached to him, if we rightly understood him, till after the dispatch was sent by Dr. Gill, of the Independent convention, asking if he would accept the nomination of the Independents. That was on Tuesday evening after the Independent convention had met, and not "a day or two prior," as the Journal has it. On this point we think the Journal has misunderstood Mr. Whitney.

Of the two Republican politicians referred to, one is J. B. Underwood, U. S. Postal Agent, and the other we do not certainly know. Underwood, Mr. Whitney says, wrote the dispatch. Judge Walton, who was a delegate to the Independent convention and a true friend of Mr. Whitney, both in the convention and out of it, being informed of this dispatch before it was sent, advised Mr. Whitney not to send it. But through the misrepresentations of Underwood he was induced to send it. Had he only taken Judge Walton's advice all would have been well.

The trick practised by Underwood excites only indignation on all hands. We have no idea Warren had anything to do with it, or any knowledge of it; but since his prospect of election was supposed to be greatly enhanced thereby, it would be only poetic justice if it recoiled on him.

AN ENTERPRISE THAT DESERVES ENCOURAGEMENT.

In response to a circular from Mr. E. O. Corson and Mr. J. L. Champlin, a number of persons met on Monday afternoon at the office of Gibbs & Hughes, to consider the subject of building up a manufactory of boots, shoes and leather in this city. The circular thus urges the consideration of the subject:

> Hides are very cheap in Oregon. Ship loads are exported from our state, and returned to us again in leather, in a raw or manufactured state, and we are paying transportation both ways. All the profits of manufacturing boots and shoes are enjoyed by others at our expense. The natural facilities of Oregon for tanning leather and manufacturing boots and shoes, are not surpassed in any other state. Hundreds of boys and young men in Oregon are growing up in idleness, for want of some opportunity to learn a trade, and yet the advantages of machinery and capital are such that individual effort cannot compete with manufacturing establishments run by machinery in California and the Eastern states. In order to stop the importation of over a million dollars worth of boots and shoes annually, we must combine capital and skill with the cheap labor of these young men, now asking for something of this kind to do.

The gentlemen who issue the circular are represented to be thoroughly acquainted with the business in all its branches; and they are willing to put into it whatever means they have. But they have not enough to ensure success, and therefore they desire to enlist others in the enterprise, allowing such as furnish the means to appoint their own treasurer and superintendent. Directions were given at the meeting for the preparation of articles of incorporation, opening of stockbooks, etc., which is now doing. The meeting will be called together again soon.

This is an enterprise that deserves encouragement. The amount of money we send abroad annually for boots, shoes, harness, and other articles in leather, is immense. The profit on the manufacture of all these goods is lost to Oregon, and our boys run into idleness and into vice for want of employment. We wish this enterprise great success.

THAT ENDORSEMENT.

The Salem Statesman warmly endorses the platform of the late Republican convention. In the main the platform is, we admit, sound and sensible, but what about the unqualified endorsement of the administration of President Grant? Does the Statesman agree to that plank? It is but a short time since the Statesman was denouncing the force bill in terms that made the old line conservative Republican feel very happy. But that odious measure was passed by a so-called Republican house of representatives, and, so far as one could judge from appearances, only failed in the senate for want of time. And the president forgot that he was president and made himself the central figure in the arena, where he struggled hand to hand with those staunch Republicans, who opposed the measure. And since the adjournment of congress fourteen of those members, who were not returned by the people, have received important appointments from the president, every one of whom had supported the force bill in the house; while not a single one of those Republicans who did not support it has received an appointment. Such men as Poland and Garfield and their class, who refused to vote for the measure that was to place the next presidential election in the hands of the president, have been ignored and a dozen nameless obscurities who were willing to be the instruments of subverting the liberties of the people, have been rewarded with positions of honor and emolument. When the Republican convention at Salem pronounced its unqualified endorsement of President Grant, it placed itself in antagonism to the party at the East, and, as we verily believe, did not reflect the sentiments of the majority of the party in Oregon. And when the Statesman declares its approval of the entire platform, including the endorsement resolution, the intelligent reader is apt to ask how that position can be made to tally with its recent denunciation of the force bill.

An investigation has just begun, say the dispatches, into the conduct of Indian Agent Gibson, of the Osage agency, who is charged by the Indian chiefs with frauds. The dispatch remarks, with a quiet humor which is none the less severe for its quietness, that "the most important" of the charges against Gibson are "making false vouchers for the salaries of his employes and false vouchers in regard to the amount of rations furnished the Little Osages." Surely charges of which forging vouchers are the gravest, are trifles which ought scarcely to be urged upon the attention of a department which has had the experience that the department of the interior has had.

An exchange does not believe Mr. Dimick, the Temperance candidate for congress ought to run, and thinks that either Lane or Warren would do just as good temperance work. This may be true of Warren, but it causes a smile when spoken of Lane. The only temperance enterprise we ever heard of his engaging in was a quixotic attempt to destroy all the whisky.

The Tammany Democracy of New York are having a running fight with John Morrissey. They have expelled him from the club, and he has organized another one. He proposes to do more hard hitting before the fight is over. If it will have any influence in causing the overthrow of the whole corrupt Democratic gang in New York it will do a good work to the people of that abused city.

The evening paper takes the OREGONIAN to task for deeming it important that a political party should have a policy. The criticism of the evening paper indicates rather a singular idea of the meaning of the word policy.

A CARD.

EUREKA, W. T., Aug. 12, 1875.

My attention has been called to an item published in the Evening Journal of August 10th, under the head of "POISONED BY EATING CANNED SALMON," which reflects upon me, as the salmon in question is said to be the "Star Brand," from my fishery. The item states that when the can was first opened the persons ate of its contents without unpleasant results. The can remained open two days, when the same persons again partook of the fish, and soon after they began purging, as if poisoned, etc. This is not to be wondered at, as a can of any kind of canned goods will commence fer enting in a very short time after being opened, and allowing the air to come in contact with it, more particularly canned fish. The very fact that the parties eat from the can on its first being opened proves that the salmon was good, and that they could only blame themselves for allowing it to stand long enough to spoil before eating it. Any fish will spoil in warm weather, sometimes in twenty-four hours, according to the warmth of the climate it is exposed in. In some climates it will keep after being opened for several days, if in winter time, but the general supposition is that when a party opens a can of fish that they will follow the directions on label, and not open until they require to use it, and then if they follow these directions, I desire that they first cut the top entirely out of the can, then place it in a dish partly filled with boiling water, so the water will come up two-thirds to the top of the can, and let the can stand until the fish is thoroughly heated through, when they will empty it out on a dish to be served from table, which will avoid breaking the fish, as in doing this it comes out in a solid lump, and by covering it with a nice sauce makes a fine and wholesome dish. If wanted cold, it is expected that any one would empty the fish out of the can into a vegetable dish and pour vinegar on it, if desired this way, but it is not expected for any one to eat a little from the can and then let it spoil, expecting that it will keep any length of time after opening, and allow anyone to partake of at their pleasure. As regards using coloring or adulterating the fish in any way, I don't do anything of the kind, nor never did, nor never heard of any one who has ever done so. My fish come fresh and hard to the shop, and are canned at once, while fresh. After being nicely cleaned and cut up ready for the cans, and the cans are always washed before putting in any fish, the only thing put in is a little salt for seasoning. When the fish and salt are in the can it is then sealed up and cooked at once. Great injustice has been done me in publishing any such cards and they should not have done so until they had proofs that I am guilty of so base an outrage.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUG. 18, 18

CITY.

THE HORSE SHOW.—The public exhibi
given yesterday by the noted horse trai Rockwell & Hurlburt, attracted an imme crowd. These gentlemen appeared on streets about 1 o'clock, each driving a t without lines. To one carriage was attach fine bay horse, and to the other vehic spotted and a sorrel horse. On reaching intersection of A and First streets, the ho were driven around in a large circle. N word was spoken by the drivers, the anim being guided solely with a whip. So were the animals trained that they coul made to turn a sharp curve by gently tou ing their sides with the whiplash, and so c plete was the control held by the drivers the horses were guided apparently with gr er ease and less danger of collidi than lines were used. After driving about so time, the crowd was invited into the pavil which was filled to its capacity. Mr. Ro well addressed the crowd for some time, set forth at considerable length the advanta possessed by the method he used of subdu and training the most stubborn and intra ble horses. At the close of his talk a scl was organized in a few minutes number over 30 pupils, composed principally of stable keepers and those who take an inte in matters connected with the turf. "Ma pa," an animal of matchless beauty and wonderful training, was then brought the ring and performed a great number tricks. Without exception "Mazeppa" is of the finest trained horse in the world, can do everything but talk. Mr. Rock has perfect control of the animal, and make him do anything he bids. No trai horse which has ever come to Portland wi circus, can compare in point of intellige with the beautiful "Mazeppa." Mr. R well also has a trained dog, "Fly," an small bay mare, which he introduced caused to perform a number of laugh tricks. An exhibition was given last even at the pavilion.

TRANSPORTATION OF WHEAT.—In speaki
the transportation of wheat to market f
Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory Spirit of the West says: "There are two bo week running to Wallula. The river is good stage at present, but is falling at the of four inches every twenty-four hours. T is no doubt as to the capacity of the rail carrying off the grain as fast as it may b ceived; but some of our farmers are fe that the boats carrying 80 or 100 tons at n will leave a large amount in storage at W lula. The question here comes in, amount of wheat will be kept there in sto the close of navigation? Some of the ducers think if there is no prospect of get their grain further than Wallula, they better store it at home and save that expe and the consequent loss by rats and o causes of waste."

LAYMEN'S UNION MEETING.—For sev weeks the Young Men's Christian Associa have been holding weekly union prayer m ings in addition to their Sunday aftern meetings. They are held alternately in several churches, and so far have been led laymen. On last Wednesday evening suc meeting was held in the Taylor street M.
church, and was largely attended, as all meetings have been, the large lecture-r being nearly filled. This evening the mee will be held in the Congregational chur where the public are cordially invited.
singing will be mainly from the "Song Ev gel," and the co-operation of all who sin especially requested.

DOWN IN NEVADA.—Charles H. Bryan whom people latterly speak sympathetic as "poor Charlie Bryan," is again bac Nevada. A recent Virginia City paper s
"Judge Charles H. Bryan, the well kno lawyer, has brought suit against the Sav Mining Company for 10¼ feet of ground ( divided) and for $300,000, including rents sues and profits." Charlie has run the ga of life from being a judge of the supreme c of California, next worth his hundreds thousands of hard cash in Washoe, then do

THE HORSE SHOW.—The public exhibition given yesterday by the noted horse trainers Rockwell & Hurlburt attracted an immense crowd. These gentlemen appeared on the streets about 1 o'clock each driving a team [illegible]. To one carriage was attached a fine bay horse and to the other vehicle a spotted and a sorrel horse. On reaching the intersection of A and First streets the horses were driven around in a large circle. Not a word was spoken by the drivers; the animals being guided solely with a whip. So well were the animals trained that they could be made to turn a sharp curve by gently touching their sides with the whiplash and so complete was the control held by the drivers that the horses were guided apparently with great ease and less danger of colliding than if lines were used. After driving about some time the crowd was invited into the pavilion which was filled to its capacity. Mr Rockwell addressed the crowd for some time setting forth at considerable length the advantages possessed by the method he used of subduing and training the most stubborn and intractable horses. At the close of his talk a school was organized in a few minutes numbering over 30 pupils, composed principally of the stable keepers and those who take an interest in matters connected with the turf. "Mazeppa," an animal of matchless beauty and of wonderful training, was then brought into the ring and performed a great number of tricks. Without exception "Mazeppa" is one of the finest trained horses in the world and can do everything but talk. Mr Rockwell has perfect control of the animal, and can make him do anything he bids. No trained horse which has ever come to Portland with a circus can compare in point of intelligence with the beautiful "Mazeppa." Mr Rockwell also has a trained dog "Fly," and a small bay mare which he introduced and caused to perform a number of laughable tricks. An exhibition was given last evening at the pavilion.

TRANSPORTATION OF WHEAT.—In speaking of the transportation of wheat to market from Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory the Spirit of the West says: "There are two boats a week running to Wallula. The river is in a good stage at present, but is falling at the rate of four inches every twenty four hours. There is no doubt as to the capacity of the railroad carrying off the grain as fast as it may be received, but some of our farmers are fearful that the boats carrying 80 or 100 tons at a trip will leave a large amount in storage at Wallula. The question here comes in: what amount of wheat will be kept there in store at the close of navigation? Some of the producers think if there is no prospect of getting their grain further than Wallula they had better store it at home and save that expense and the consequent loss by rats and other causes of waste."

LAYMEN'S UNION MEETING.—For several weeks the Young Men's Christian Association have been holding weekly union prayer meetings in addition to their Sunday afternoon meetings. They are held alternately in the several churches and so far have been led by laymen. On last Wednesday evening such a meeting was held in the Taylor street M E church, and was largely attended as all the meetings have been, the large lecture room being nearly filled. This evening the meeting will be held in the Congregational church, where the public are cordially invited. The singing will be mainly from the "Song Evangel" and the co-operation of all who sing is especially requested.

DOWN IN NEVADA.—Charles H Bryan, of whom people latterly speak sympathetically as "poor Charlie Bryan," is again back in Nevada. A recent Virginia City paper says: "Judge Charles H Bryan, the well known lawyer, has brought suit against the Savage Mining Company for 10 feet of ground (undivided) and for $300,000 including rents, issues and profits." Charlie has run the gamut of life from being a judge of the supreme court of California, next worth his hundreds of thousands of hard cash in Washoe, then down to a seat in the dock of the police court in Portland hatless and shoeless without a dime to obtain bitters or breakfast. Such is life.

NEW SAWMILL.—Steam was raised for the first time yesterday at the new sawmill of Estes & Carter which is situated in the southern end of the city. A number of pulleys were turned out while the machinery was in motion. We are informed that everything worked like a charm, the engine and machinery running as smoothly as could be desired. A powerful force pump is attached to the machinery and will be able to render valuable service in the event of a fire. In a short time the mill will be in full operation and turning out lumber to its fullest capacity.

The following board of directors was elected: M Wilkins of Lane county, M F [illegible] of Marion, W M Powers of Linn, G B Smith of Benton, S Goff of Yamhill, W G Scoggins of Washington and Joseph Beezley. M Wilkins was chosen president, W G Scoggins vice president and Mr T J Matlock of Clackamas was re-elected secretary and business manager for the ensuing year.

HOLTON HOUSE.—The Holton House on Front street, between Stark and Oak, is something worth seeing. We speak of it not as a business enterprise but simply with respect to its finishing and furnishing. The rooms are finished in the handsomest style with black walnut and birds eye maple in panel work. The furniture is of black walnut with French walnut finish and is very elegant. Every bedroom is a parlor in taste and elegance of appointments. There is no finer establishment of the kind on the Pacific coast.

After the accident Mr Easter started for this city to secure medical attendance. Before reaching the office of a surgeon he became very weak and faint from the loss of blood but he was brought to the city and the wound properly dressed. Fortunately the wound is not severe and will not prevent Mr Easter from following his avocation but a short time.

REPAIRING THE TRACK.—Early yesterday morning a party of men commenced to tear up the track on the east side north of J street at a point where the trestle work begins. The track was torn up for about two rods, and the road bed widened. The object was to make the track wider and thus facilitate switching near the end of the trestle. The work was all complete before the 4 o'clock train came down.

THE MASONIC PILGRIMAGE

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

LOOKING WELL TO THE NORTH

Since the building of Solomon's temple the public work of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons has been quietly done. It is only in keeping therefore with the traditions and usage of the order that the interesting, not to say important, pilgrimage which the brethren of Oregon started out upon to day is an event of which the community generally knew but little beforehand. Publicity was not given to the preliminary arrangements. The stone that went to the building of the temple were not hewn at Jerusalem; the details of what promises to be a noteworthy incident in the history of Masonry on this coast were neither placarded on dead walls nor circulated through live newspapers. It has been the privilege of the writer to take part in Masonic ceremonials of all kinds save those in which only the free and accepted may participate. He has been with the brotherhood in river beds as they well and truly laid the principal stones of great bridges destined to be an abiding monument of the proud name they bear. He has been with subordinate lodges as with meagre display they laid the first stones of their own modest temples, and he has been with grand and subordinate representations from the lodges of a kingdom as with splendor and pomp they took the leading part in the beginning of some vast national building. And it was then as it is now. The work of preparation was carried out beyond the public ken.

The purpose of this pilgrimage is reunion and festivity. The objective point is Olympia. While we are looking well to the north there are others looking well to the south. Delegations from the lodges of British Columbia are to meet the Oregon brethren on the Sound and there fraternize with the brotherhood of Washington Territory who are to act the part of hosts on the occasion. A whole week is to be spent in alternations between labor and refreshment. There is to be some lodge work, some speech making, for the good of the order and the public, one little clam eating, some dancing, probably some deep sea sailing. Altogether there will be more festivity than work, and although they belong to an order against which all the clamor for women's rights will never prevail, it is to the honor of Masonry that the brothers do not believe there can be true festivity if the sisters are not with them. The sisters are present in almost as great number as the brethren and there is a sprinkling of children. About 150 ladies and gentlemen started from Portland leaving on the trim little steamer Welcome. Eight o'clock A M was the advertised hour for leaving the wharf, and as this is an excursion differing from others we leave almost punctually at the hour. The steamer swings around to the opposite side of the river at the railroad wharf. Here we wait for the Albany express which comes in on time bringing with it more passengers for the Welcome than for Portland. At 8:40 the lines are dropped and the Welcome moves onward to Kalama. There are at least 200 excursionists on board all told. Some of these are from a considerable distance. One or two are all the way from Jacksonville and from other points in Southern Oregon delegations have fallen into the Masonic line. We have of all classes. An ex-representative at congress is on board and there are amongst us state officers, journalists, merchants, laboring men, men who have grown gray in Masonic service, others who have passed little further into the order than its threshold. Of those who are not bound together by the mystic tie there are but few. All are happy and free as school children at recess. The weather looks somewhat gloomy as we start. The trees on the banks of the river loom up gloomily through belts of fog; the bottom lands are masses of neutral tints; Swan island lies gray and heavy on the river. The ladies have put on their new Ulster waterproofs and the only bright object visible is the national flag as in tri-color brilliancy it flutters in a bracing breeze from the staff of the Welcome. The weather, as may therefore be imagined, forms at the outset a subject of serious conversation. But no one doubts that he is out for a good time, and the confidence of the pilgrims in the belief that much real enjoyment is in store for them is expressed in phrases that mean much but in which more is thought of expression than the Queen's English. Nine men out of ten will answer the inquiry "Are you out for the whole week?" with a sharp, decisive "You bet, yer!" And so conversation goes by easy grades from the weather up to considerations of how the week is to be spent and who you are going particularly to spend it with, until at last the weather is forgotten. And it is forgotten simply because it improves. It is said that that bonnet is most becoming to a lady which passes unnoticed on her head, and on the same principle it may be said that that weather is most enjoyable which does not call for comment. The neutral tints break out into more cheerful lights as we steam onward. The long line of Sauvie's island gleams in the steady sunshine as we pass it on the west side; the ripples on the river laugh back to the sun; some of the ladies throw off their waterproofs, and some brilliant hued scarfs and shawls are mingled among the sombre garments that men are content to wear. We have no [illegible] it would be a pity if we did not also have color—worse still if we did not have sunshine. With color and sunshine the Welcome steams merrily onward, and with an early dinner for which the breeze on the river had fully prepared them the pilgrims are full of good humor as they mark the progress they make on the first stage of their journey. Capt Kelly at the wheel keeps the steamer on a steady course. Purser Noyes is attentive to the wants of the passengers, and it is admitted that the steward set three fine tables.

KALAMA, Aug 16th.

FROM KALAMA TO OLYMPIA

At Kalama there was a rush for the dry goods stores as well as for the cars. Those persons who had been over that portion of the N P R R that runs from Kalama to Tacoma were easily to be distinguished from those who hadn't; they bore the regalia of their admission into the mysteries of the route in the shape of dusters that enclosed their bodies from their chins to their heels. Those who had come unprepared with dusters being duly warned by the knowing ones that if their existence in the cars was not to be one of torment it would be well for them to follow the fashion set them by their more experienced neighbors, were not long in [illegible] by the advice that was given them. By the time the cars were ready to start on the overland journey each male member of the party had a duster on his back, and Kalama was made a little the wealthier in consequence. Capt J C Ainsworth and General Sprague—the one representing the steamboat and the latter the railroad company—saw that the passengers were safely and comfortably transferred. Captain Ainsworth being in addition a member of the Masonic committee, took quite an active interest in the arrangements. Transfer and start were effected without hitch. Unfortunately the passenger portion of the rolling stock of the Pacific branch of the N P R R is but limited, although more than sufficient for ordinary requirements. The two cars that were drawn up on the platform were not commodious enough to accommodate the ladies of the party and their escorts, some of whom, and these not the least notable of the excursionists, contented themselves with such spare room as was afforded in the mail cars. The men were accommodated in trucks, which were seated for the occasion and covered at the side with fir branches. These trucks followed right behind the engine and in advance of the cars. They seemed a grateful sight in the hot mid day sun with their lavish display of greenery, but the journey had hardly been well begun before their discomforts commenced to torment their occupants like a plague. The merry masons that filled them at the start were dusty millers ere ten miles were traveled. White dust poured in and around them and covered them like a garment. Men with raven locks became gray haired as they rode onward into the territory; men with silvery hairs became wonderfully venerable in appearance; the smoothly brushed stove pipe hat of the morning had [illegible] Horace Greeley would have envied. From white dust we then graduated along into black dust and then the face of every man in the open cars was without exception murkier and blacker than that of the engine driver. What little there is to be seen of scenery on the road was a sealed book to the riders on the trucks. Even the Cowlitz [illegible] belt of dust seen [illegible] that was the Cowlitz was only [illegible] of a venerable steamboat man who [illegible] its further navigation [illegible] and who [illegible] We were [illegible] we were better [illegible] Masonic [illegible] pleasant old gentleman that his lady declined to identify her liege and regarded with horror his overtures in assertion of his marital rights. There was given a case in which a quiet individual who had borne the heat and the dust of the day thus far without a murmur, black guarded a looking glass some one considerately brought him as a foul slander on humanity. In the ordinary cars the dust was not particularly troublesome but the heat was oppressive almost beyond endurance, and there could be little doubt that the duster rule was the healthier one.

As the train drew up at Tenino the Olympia cornet band that had come thither by stage serenaded the excursionists and went with them over the remainder of the journey. At Tenino also it was found that the engine, as it backed to a siding for some purpose, was handsomely and appropriately decorated. The national flags were displayed on each side. Below the headlight was the inscription "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity," and immediately below this inscription was a large representation of the emblem, the compass and the square. Inside the emblem [illegible] the shield on a coat of arms hung a masonic portrait of Washington. The emblem with its accessories was likened to a heraldic device, as M V Brown and I R Moores mounted the cow catcher and became the dexter and sinister supporters of the emblem [illegible]. Mr Brown was a supporter of the device—and of his dress hat—all the way from Tenino to Tacoma. Mr Moores resigned the sinister support to a younger man at the first stoppage. The ride to Tacoma from Tenino was as noteworthy for dust and heat and oppression as that from Kalama to the latter place. No one enjoyed the ride—probably not even the one solitary individual who is the Mark Tapley of our expedition, a man whose face wears a smile even when most composed, who said he delighted in the dust as a chicken does. It was practically not so much the dust that made him cheerful as the amber colored liquid that was drawn from casks on the front truck and that was free to all the dust sufferers.

Tacoma was reached on time. Shortly after 6 o'clock we were on board the steamer North Pacific bound for Olympia. The sail down the Sound was as delightful as the car ride was oppressive. At dark the moon shone like a red ball through the murky atmosphere that at this season obliterates so much that is grand in the scenery of this region. The atmosphere cleared somewhat as the steamer went throbbing on its way and soon the moon shone down upon us in its true color sending a stream of soft light over the quiet waters of the Sound like the shimmer of a sword blade. The steamer drew up at the wharf at Olympia amidst a magnificent display of fireworks and the brethren from Oregon with their wives and their sweethearts were cordially welcomed and hospitably provided for by the brethren in Olympia and their wives and their sweethearts.

OLYMPIA, Aug 16 (Midnight).

DEATH OF MR BONNELL.—Yesterday morning's dispatches contain the announcement of the death of Allison Clark Bonnell at his home in San Francisco at the advanced age of 74 years. Mr Bonnell was a resident of Portland many years ago and enjoyed the honor of having served as the second mayor of this city. Mr Bonnell was a native of New Jersey. He was born near the town of Chatham, Morris county, on the 16th of March 1801. He was of very respectable parents, his father having served with considerable distinction as a soldier in the revolutionary struggle for independence and subsequently became a tiller of the soil he had gallantly risked his life to defend. Mr Bonnell in the year 1817 emigrated to Brookville, Indiana, and engaged in mercantile pursuits. He served as assistant clerk in the receiver's department of the government land office beside occupying the positions of deputy sheriff and county recorder at different times. From Brookville he went to Cincinnati where he once more engaged in mercantile pursuits and from the latter place he was attracted to California in 1849 by the discovery of gold and the glowing reports received from the new El Dorado. He arrived in San Francisco November 1, 1849 and shortly thereafter he became recorder's clerk under Geary's administration. In the following August he came to this city, engaged in business and two years thereafter was elected mayor, occupying the latter position with much honor to himself and the entire satisfaction of all. Four years afterward Mr Bonnell returned to San Francisco and became connected with the business management of the Daily Bulletin of that city. There he remained up to the time of his death.

TRANSFERRED.—Rev H M Sexton, who has been appointed to the Salem charge by the M E conference, has recently been transferred from the Iowa conference. Rev J H Waring, who has been stationed at East Portland, was also transferred to the [illegible] conference. He is also a nominee for editor of the P C Advocate.

SATISFACTION FILED.—The case of State v. Lom [illegible], charged with assault on the second cook of the B[illegible], came up in police court yesterday afternoon immediately on the arrival of that steamer from Astoria. Satisfaction was filed by the Chinaman and the case was dismissed on the payment of cost.

BRIEF NOTES.

The Pilgrims heard from.

Council meeting this evening.

Steamer will likely arrive after we go to press.

The custom house grounds are being improved.

New wheat has commenced to roll in from up the valley.

The weather vane on the Central school is correct once more.

The schools are being brushed up preparatory to the fall opening.

The steamer John L Stephens hence arrived at San Francisco yesterday morning.

The steamer Idaho from San Francisco arrived here yesterday evening with a full freight.

Capt Wilkinson and Major Fowler who were ordered to attend court martial at Fort Canby have both returned to the city.

The bricks in the gutter around the custom house block have been taken up and planks substituted as a better mode of drainage.

Scaffolding has been put up around the tower of the Odd Fellows Temple for the purpose of giving it a new coat of paint.

There is a terrible bad stretch of sidewalk on—well it is so general that we hardly know where that particular bad stretch is.

Jas Turner was fined $15 in police court yesterday for attempting to pass liquor to prisoners in the city jail. He failed to liquidate and goes in for seven days.

General Howard has been apprised that the commissioned officers at Camp Harney had been notified to appear before the civil court at Canyon City. They go as witnesses in the case of Major Otis.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

A regular meeting of the board of trustees of East Portland was held at the rooms on Monday evening. Messrs Laing, Lawrence, Parrott and Stephens were present. President Hoyt in the chair.

A communication was received from Mount Hood Fire Engine Co No 1 asking to be recognized as a fire company, and submitting the constitution and by laws of the organization which had been signed by upwards of 50 members. The communication was referred to the committee on fire and water.

A report was received from the committee on fire and water in favor of granting permission to Chas Bartell and others to sink a well on the sidewalk on Fourth street near I. Adopted.

ORDINANCES.

An ordinance to provide for the establishment of a fire department in order to prevent and extinguish fires and to preserve property endangered thereby was read three times and passed.

An ordinance admitting Mount Hood Engine Co No 1 to the East Portland Fire Department was read three times and passed.

RESOLUTIONS.

A resolution authorizing the committee on streets and public property to contract with the lowest responsible bidder to construct a bridge connecting First street, McMillen's Addition, with Holladay avenue at an expense not to exceed $150 was read and adopted.

A resolution directing the street commissioner to repair Fourth street between G and J adopted.

A resolution directing the street commissioner to open the sewer between Asylum creek and the river was read and referred to the committee on streets and public property.

BALL AND BAT.

A correspondent writing from Vancouver says:

The base ball fever is at its height here. The Spartan base ball club of Vancouver has challenged any picked nine in Clarke county for a match game of base ball for the sum of $25, $10 forfeit. The game is to be played at Vancouver during the coming week. The challenge has been accepted and Friday the 20th is the day chosen for the game which promises to be the best of the season. The Spartans play a game with the Young Americas of Portland, on Saturday at Vancouver, the second game of the series with them. A general invitation is extended to the base ballists and people of Portland to come over and see the game.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

DeLashmutt & Oatman will offer at auction sale on next Tuesday, Aug 24th, some rare bargains in real estate. See advertisement.

Buchtel & Stolte have opened in their large, elegant and convenient rooms in Goodnough's new building, First and Morrison streets. The rooms were arranged especially for the business and will rank with the best in the country. The firm have recently purchased the business of Bosco & Megler and engaged the services of Mr Bosco whose reputation is A No 1 as photographer. With the consolidation of these large houses and the experience of the gentlemen connected with them we see no reason why success should not attend them. By all means call at the new rooms. Note ad.

PERSONAL.

Among the passengers by the steamer Oriflamme we observe the names of Mr Guy Howard and Miss G F Howard, a son and daughter of Gen Howard, who are just from the East. Guy Howard has just completed a thorough course at Yale College and graduated from that time honored institution with marked honors. Miss Howard has been attending a seminary in Washington and is a young lady of rare social and intellectual accomplishments. Both son and daughter expect to remain in this city.

For the Summer and Fall season some new and appropriate styles in clothing have been introduced. The large and varied stock at BECK & WALDMAN'S is worthy of inspection by all intending to buy something unusually nice and attractive. Their late arrivals of Furnishing Goods are also very fine and must meet with great favor. This firm continue to offer special inducements in all [illegible] of clothing. In every respect their stock is complete.

SAN FRANCISCO BOOT & SHOE STORE.—Moore & Holtbaugh, successors to J B Schuer, 123 First street, respectfully say to the public generally that they have marked down the old stock from 25 to 50 per cent and intend to sell regardless of cost. They have this day received a large stock of New Goods, latest styles which they will sell as cheap as the cheapest. Undertaking to suit all who may favor them with their patronage. Custom work done in the best style with new and scientific principles. [illegible] done to order. All work warranted. Give them a call before purchasing elsewhere.

One of the most attractive establishments in the city is that of JOE KOHN'S in the handsome building recently constructed at the corner of First and Morrison streets. Mr KOHN has an unusually large and varied stock of Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises &c. He has made a point to select goods on his late trip specially adapted to the [illegible] trade and his customers will find everything in the best store of the very best quality, latest styles and the prices regulated to suit.

The AMERICAN EXCHANGE HOTEL is still run by Quimby who has for the past ten years aimed to continue [illegible] whatever [illegible] the St Charles Hotel. His old patrons [illegible] always meeting him at the American Exchange [illegible]

A PATIENT WIFE

[M. Quad, in Detroit Free Press]

She's a little bit of a woman all patience and sunshine, and I'd spoil the best silk hat that money could buy for the privilege of lending her my umbrella in a rain storm

She married and she's got an old rhinoceros of a husband He makes it a practice to come home tight, at eleven o clock, every other night and has for years and he can't remember that she ever gave him a cross word about it When he falls into the hall, she is waiting to close the door and help him back to the sitting room where a good fire awaits him She draws off his boots, unbuttons his collar, helps him off with his coat, and all the time she is saying

"Poor Henry! How sorry I am that you had this attack of vertigo! I'm afraid that you will be found dead by the roadside some night"

"Wazzer mean by verzigo?" he growls But she helps him off with his vest and pleasantly continues

"I'm so glad you got home all right I hope the day will come when you can pass more of your time at home It is dreadful how your business drives you"

"What bizshiness' whaz yer talking 'bout?" he replies

"Poor dear, how hot your head is" she continues, and presently he breaks down and weeps and exclaims,

"Yez zur—zic's a 'orse—wearing zelf out fast's can—wishzi was dead"

Next morning she never refers to the subject, but pleasantly inquires how he slept, and if his mind is clear. His boots may be missing, and he yells out—

"Whar'n thunder's my boots?"

"Right here, my dear!" she replies, and she hands them out all nicely blacked up

If she wants a dress, or a hat, or a cloak, and he yells out that household expenses are eating him up, she never "sasses" him back nor tells him that she could have married a congressman, nor declares that she will write to her mother and tell her just how it is

"That's so my dear—times are hard" she says, and she gets up just as good a dinner as if he had left her $50

He may come home tight at supper time, but she is not shocked. She remarks that it is an unexpected pleasure to have him home so early, and she pretends not to notice his stupid look. He sees three chairs where there is but one, and in trying to sit down he strikes the floor like the fall of a derrick

"Wazzer jaw zhat chair was for?" he yells, and she replies

"It's that hole in the carpet—I knew you would stumble!" and she helps him up, and brings him a strong cup of tea

They do not keep a servant, and when cold weather came she never thought of planking herself down in a chair opposite him and saying

"Now, then, you'll either get up and light the fires, or there won't be any lighted, mark that, old baldhead?"

No, she didn't resort to any such base and tyrannical measures When daylight comes she slips out of bed, makes the fires, warms his socks, and then, bending over him, she says

"Arise, darling, and greet the festive morn!"

He's sick sometimes, and I've known that woman coax him for two straight hours, to take the doctor's medicine turn over his pillow twenty two times, keep a wet cloth on his head, pare his corn down, and then wish that she had a quail to make him some soup When he gets into a fight down town, and comes home with his ears bitten up, and his nose pointing to the northeast, she inquires how the horse happened to run away with him, and she says she is so thankful that he wasn't killed She has an excuse for everything, and she never admits that anyone but herself is to blame about anything Lor' bless her—I hope she'll slip into heaven and never be asked a question

A MAN WHO HASN'T SPOKEN TO HIS WIFE IN TWELVE YEARS —The Cohoes Bulletin says there is residing in Harmony street Cohoes, a man aged seventy-five years who has not spoken to his wife in twelve years He has been married fifty years, has an amiable wife and several children and grandchildren, and considerable property The old man and his wife always lived together happily, not a ripple ever appearing on their course through life until about twelve years ago, when one morning the wife came down stairs and saluted her husband in a gentle manner as was her wont to do, but to her astonishment he made no reply to her salutation She spoke to him again and again, but always with the same effect, and ever since that July morning in 1863, the husband never opened his lips to his wife No cause is assigned for his strange proceedings He always speaks familiarly with the rest of his family and friends but on no occasion or under any consideration would he speak one word to his wife He always treats her with gentleness and kindness, always providing for her wants with the most scrupulous care, but not one word can be coaxed out of his lips to refer to his strange way of treating her His wife and himself always partake of the same bed they eat at the same table, they walk to church side by side, yet not one word has escaped that man's lips for the past twelve years to that woman His little granddaughter lives with him and through her he always knows his wife's wants, and no request of hers is left unheeded Several friends of the family have tried repeatedly to fathom his strange action, but they have always found it impossible

HONEST AGAINST HIMSELF —A son of the Faderland went into Barney Gallagur's saloon, the other day, and called for a drink Barney shook his head, saying "No you are drunk now" "I bade you not" "Well Ell bet you fifty dollars to one that you are drunk," said Barney, while quite a number gathered around to see the fun "Good enough, I bade you," said he, pulling out fractional currency enough to make up a dollar "Now, who will you leave it mid?" "I'll leave it to yourself Are you not drunk?" "Yes by jingoes, I am," said he mournfully, "take der dollar!" A friend of his happened to be in the crowd and upbraided him for deciding against himself "but it was the drudth" "Well supposing it was, what did you want to be fool enough to bet for, then?" "I couldn't help it der odds was so gread" he replied turning away more in sorrow than in anger —Bethlehem (Pa) Times

AGED WRESTLERS —The Eatonton (Ga) Messenger has a "pleasant incident" which it relates as follows Uncle Billy Dennis of this county, is upward of eighty years old A few weeks back he visited his children in Hancock While there he met an old gentleman with whom he had a regular cross road combat just fifty years ago The two exchanged salutations, talked a while at random meanwhile taking one or two "horns" Then the Hancock veteran proposed a wrestle The banter was accepted, and Uncle Billy who whipped at their last meeting, honorably celebrated this semi centennial by walloping the Hancockite flat upon the ground. Probably two other old gentlemen of like age, strength, and sprightliness, cannot be found in Georgia

The volume of business in local financial circles shows but little increase as yet this month over last though it was anticipated that August would witness a more active movement which it may before the close We hear it remarked that the shipment of breadstuffs is likely to set in later than usual this season but it now seems likely that the first grain laden vessel this season will leave our port at nearly or quite as early a date as in the last harvest year which was Sept 16th At that time however a number of vessels about 14 were either here or fully due and the bulk of the fall shipments came on rapidly creating a brisk and large demand for funds which produced a closeness in the market that lasted until the ice in the river checked the movement of grain for a time It however does not appear probable that the shipping business will be so lively in the early autumn as last year and with the reported ample supply of available means it is not likely that the trade will be at all embarrassed.

The two mercantile agencies which are supposed to have a very widely extended knowledge of the situation of commercial affairs having been interviewed differ very materially in their views of the prospects of the future of business Mr McKillop of McKillop & Sprague's commercial agency pronounces the condition of business during the past months of 1875 better in the aggregate than that of the first six months of 1874 He could not hazard anything like a trustworthy general opinion as to the future but he was able to give good reasons in his judgment for pleasant anticipations There could be no doubt that liquidation had been much more general than was customary which accounted for the cheapness of money in 1874 and economy had also been practiced to an unusual extent Still taking into consideration the reduction of values indebtedness and the amount economized with the good crops of the year Mr McKillop thought this year opened with the country in a sound condition commercially speaking The Southern States though suffering severely in some portions had done well on the whole and the West too, was by no means in such a feverishly speculative mood as it was wont to be And so 1875 was ushered in with fair prospects and business men were full of pleasurable anticipations

Now by contrast the statement of Mr Barlow of Dun Barlow & Co's commercial agency seems very gloomy indeed He said that he could not give a very strong opinion on the present or future of American mercantile prospects at so short a notice still his impressions although not shared in toto by the rest of the firm were founded on close observation of conditions of trade generally He felt that the year so far had been a failure in a business sense and trade had fallen far below the expectations of the modestly hopeful ones Indeed he could not feel justified in saying that the future would be much better in view of what had past up to this and he judged that the most that could be done by careful business men would be to preserve their assets from shrinkage. He believed that much of the present stagnation was due to the existence of a large unremunerative class of operatives who had little or no money with which to buy even the common necessaries of life He wished however, to be distinctly understood as attaching no vital weight to his own views because he was not prepared to give this subject that critical and specific investigation it imperatively demanded

Prices of Wheat.

The Rural Press publishes a table showing the fluctuation of prices for wheat in the San Francisco market for each month from January 1st 1864 to August 11 1875 inclusive —over 11 years An examination of the table shows that the lowest figure reached in that time was $1 05 per cental, in Nov 1869 though the average price for that month was $1 60—The highest figure which the cereal commanded in that market in the decade referred to was $3 30 per cental in February 1865 the average for the same month being $3 75 per cental The highest average for any month however was for March and April of the same year $3 The lowest average is reported to have been in the month of March 1873 and is put down at $1 36 though the highest price for the same month was $1 93 and the lowest $1 70 In 1864 the rise was gradual throughout the year, from $1 45 in January to $3 6½ in December In 1865 the market opened in January at $4 25 and slowly rose to $5 remaining at that until July suddenly dropping to $2 and closing at $2 05 in December The next year 1866, prices varied but little seldom going above $2 70 or below $1 50 The range was about the same in 1867 up to August when an advance took place and the cereal went up steadily reaching $3 per cental as the average price in March 1868 when it began to decline, reaching $1 8 in August and not touching $2 any more until January 1869 The following February the average was $1 90 which it did not exceed on an average for any month until November 1870 when it rose to $2 1½ In 1871 the price was not below $2 being the only year in the eleven in which it kept above that figure In May 1871 the average price was $3 10 the lowest average for any month that year being $2 2 in July The average price in 1872 ranged from $1 50 in August to $2 27 in January a decline having occurred from the first of the year till harvest, but the market recovered toward new year 1873 when it was $2 0½ but declined to $1 62 in July and gradually rose to $2 15 in January 1874 The average for February '74 was $2 02½ March and April $1 90 May $1 80 June $1 77½ July $1 65 August $1 60 September $1 6½ October $1 1½ November $1 52½ December $1 47½ The average for January this year was $1 60 February $1 52½ March $1 55 April $1 6½ May $1 67 June $1 70 July $1 7 and the first half of August $1 70 In no other year for twelve years has the August average price been as high as this except in 1865 $3 50 and 1871 $2 27

A study of the table develops many other interesting facts in regard to the market and its fluctuations. During the whole harvest year of 1864 65 the price averaged $3 50@5 each month In 1865-66 it averaged $1 70@2 20 In 1866 67 $1 50@2 In 1867 68 $1 72@2 90 In 1868-69 $1 57½@2 05 In 1869-70 $1 58@1 80 In 1870 71 $1 75@3 10 In 1871 72, $1 52½ @2 7½ In 1872 73 $1 50@2 0½ In 1873 74 $1 77½ @2 8 and in 1874 75 $1 1½@2 20

Miscellaneous

Weston Umatilla county claims to have sent the first shipment of wheat to the Portland market this harvest year 400 bushels having been sent from there in July

The Commercial flouring mills at McMinnville are offered for sale They have already obtained a wide reputation for making superior flour and are located in the center of one of the best wheat growing sections of our state.

Work at the Carson mint for the current fiscal year was resumed on the 8th of July Operations for the balance of that month were confined to silver coin with the following result Half dollars 68 000 pieces dimes 5.0 000 pieces total value $1 000 This coin will all be shipped to Washington

The coinage at the Philadelphia mint for July amounted to about half a million dollars including $172 000 in double eagles $132 000 in half dollars $107 0 0 in quarter dollars and $80 000 in dimes The result for the three United States mints during the month of July was a total coinage of $3 081,500

The St. Louis Trade Journal of August 6th says the rains of July injured or destroyed wheat in Missouri and adjoining states to the extent of probably millions of bushels The exact extent of the damage cannot now be known but for present purposes it is sufficient to say that at the present rate wheat sufficient to make 10 000 barrels of flour could not be gathered together in that market in three months This for the very simple reason that nearly all the fall wheat now being received is damp and in other respects out of condition

Shipping Intelligence

The steamship Idaho with freight arrived at her berth this afternoon five days from San Francisco

The steamship Oriflamme from San Francisco will be due to morrow night

Home Produce Market

WHEAT—The Liverpool market is reported at 11s 4d per bushel Lex warehouse for average California San Francisco is quiet at former quotations while our local market is dull owing to the scarcity of sellers and the fact that shippers are only anxious to fill orders and will not deal largely on speculation under the present condition of the crops and markets [illegible] The quotations to day range from $1 40 [illegible] as the extreme The arrival of a few [illegible] now almost due will probably [illegible] give a little more time to the market for the next fortnight

FLOUR—The market is still firm at $6 7½ bbl for standard extras $5 for good [illegible] and country brands [illegible] for superfine The present stock in this market is [illegible] the recent shipments to San Francisco and the supply of the local trade having exceeded receipts

OATS—The receipts have been light for a fortnight past and the local consumption takes up about all offering The new oats harvested and threshed are reported to have yielded fairly but later sowed which is yet to harvest it is anticipated will fall considerably below average Some lots to supply the home trade have been sold at 8c [illegible] but shippers will not pay so much by 5@ 10 ₩ bushel

MILLFEED—There is not a heavy stock in the market but the demand which is light, is fairly supplied at $1 @1 per ton for bran and $30 for middling. Shorts are quotable [illegible]

BARLEY—Prices are unchanged and in the absence of sufficient transactions to establish prices we quote feed at $1 and choice brewing $1 45 ₩ 100 pounds

POTATOES—There is an ample supply in the market and prices for a choice article have receded [illegible] ₩ lb

ONIONS—Report from the growing crop is favorable Importations from San Francisco continue Market quoted at from 1@1¼c ₩ lb

FRESH FRUIT—Apples pears and plums are in free receipt as are also blackberries Prices continue so unsettled that we are unable to give correctly the range for apples [illegible] ₩ box plums and pears are the same Blackberries are from [illegible] ₩ lb

BACON—The supply is not so large and with a falling off in receipts prices have stiffened up a little and quotations are now furnished at 12@13c ₩ lb for sides 12½@14c for hams and 8@9c for shoulders

LARD—Importation from San Francisco is freer The market is quiet at from 14 to 16c ₩ lb

EGGS—Though retailers are paying 25c ₩ dozen to day the market is dull and more likely to drop than to advance

BUTTER—Market firmer for best quality in rolls and also in kegs We quote rolls for fair to choice 25@35c ₩ lb extra choice 40@50c and common 15@20c In kegs we quote extra at [illegible] ₩ lb in jobbing lots

CHICKENS—Old were sold to day as high as $4 50 per dozen

DUCKS—Demand light with prices lower quotable at $1 50@ per dozen

BEEF CATTLE—The consumption in this city from July 31 1874 to August 1 1875 is given at 4000 head. Slaughterers prices are 4½@5c ₩ lb net and 2½@ 3c gross

WOOL—Transactions are a little off at present though a good deal of the spring clip is yet unsold The Eastern market has undergone no important fluctuation during a week past Ours is quotable at 22@25c for choice valley and 19@21c per lb for Eastern Oregon Much complaint is yet heard among buyers because of lots of wool badly packed and not graded

Ayer's Ague Cure,

FOR THE SPEEDY RELIEF OF

Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons,

℞ Has been widely used during the last twenty five years in the treatment of these distressing diseases and with such unvarying success that it has gained the reputation of being infallible The shakes or chills once broken by it do not return until the disease is contracted again This has made it an accepted remedy and trusted specific for the Fever and Ague of the West and the Chills and Fever of the South

Ayer's Ague Cure eradicates the noxious poison from the system and leaves the patient as well as before the attack It thoroughly expels the disease so that no Liver Complaints, Rheumatism Neuralgia Dysentery or Debility follow the cure Indeed where Disorders of the Liver and Bowels have occurred from Miasmatic Poison it removes the cause of them and they disappear Not only is it an effectual cure but if taken occasionally by patients exposed to malaria it will expel the poison and protect them from attack Travelers and temporary residents in Fever and Ague localities are thus enabled to defy the disease The General Debility which is so apt to ensue from continued exposure to Malaria and Miasm has no speedier remedy

For Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy

Gen Butler on the Financial Question.

Gen Butler was invited to address a public meeting under the auspices of the Legal Tender Club of this city. Other engagements making it impossible for him to be present the general writes I am unable to comprehend appreciate, and much admire that system of government finances which has so wrought upon the business and production of the country that over 2,000 000 of working men and people who desire productive employment have not had it for the last two years and by which production which they would have added the wealth of the country during that time is Assuming that each one in that number skilled and unskilled could have an average of $2 per day for working days of the past year then we have lost $1 200 000 000 or about equal to one half a national debt by their enforced idleness, to say nothing of the loss of morals of working men and women How long active business and property holders and holders of those kinds of property which are open to the tax-gatherer will permit a system of financial administration to go on by which their property shall depreciate 33 per cent. in its value while the owners of property such as notes, mortgages and bonds, which are untaxed because not open to the tax gatherer have their property appreciate and escape taxation is a problem which the good sense of people of this country will solve in the coming presidential election.
